OVERVIEW

Classic waterfront villa overlooking Port Andratx with direct private access to the sea.

This fantastic house sits directly on the water in a truly outstanding position offering privacy, private sea access and unbeatable views of Dragonera.

This property of particular interest to those with an interest in art and architecture being just meters from Studio Weil, the painting and sculpture studio designed and built for artist Barbara Weil. An impressive structure designed by Daniel Libeskind, the houses proximity to Studio Weil makes it truly one of a kind.

This classic example of 1960s island architecture is ready to move into and makes a wonderful family home or a spectacular holiday property, but it is also ideal for a total refurbishment.

This house is all about location, with first-line views and easy, uninterrupted access to the sea across gently sloping rocks into crystal blue waters. It is also just a 10-minute walk to Port Andratx and its restaurants.

The main house is built on a single level, with accommodation wings either side. One of these has an independent entrance. All of the rooms are exterior and enjoy the incredible vistas, and original wooden beams and floors help to emphasise the warm and welcoming atmosphere.

In addition to large windows, the house has a variety of porches and terraces for relaxing or entertaining, either in the sun or chilling in the shade beneath a mature pine. A west-facing aspect ensures that you are always perfectly placed to enjoy the island's famous sunsets.

There is plenty of space to the front of the house with gardens and parking, plus various study, workshop, studio and storage options.
