Calpe is made up of three large clearly differentiated areas: the town centre, the beaches and the residential developments, each with a very different type of construction, distribution of space and inhabitants.

The Peñón de Ifach is the most characteristic and emblematic geographical element of Calpe that differentiates it from the rest of the tourist destinations in the Mediterranean. It is a rock formation 332 m high and 1 km deep in the sea and divides the coastline into two large bays, in which the two most important beaches of Calpe are found; that of "la Fossa" to the north and that of "Arenal - Bol" to the south.

Calpe is located 65 kilometres from the city of Alicante and 75 km from its international airport, from the city of Valencia 100 km, from Madrid 460 km and from Barcelona 460 km. The A - 7 motorway and Ctra. Nacional 332 provide easy movement between all the towns on the coast and inland.
