Castle of Llaés – A Thousand-Year-Old Historical Gem with a Living Spirit

Thousand-year-old restored castle with tourist license, surrounded by nature and cultural heritage.

The Castle of Llaés is not just a property – it's a living piece of Catalan history, restored with care, inhabited with love, and open to the world.

Strategically perched atop a hill in the municipality of Ripoll (Girona) and surrounded by stunning natural landscapes, this castle was first documented in the year 919, making it one of the oldest fortifications in the region. It played a key role in the defense and organization of the territory during the Carolingian era and the Christian reconquest. Around the castle, a small medieval hamlet was born – one that still retains its historic charm.

Over the centuries, the Castle of Llaés has stood as a silent witness and protagonist of history, passing through noble hands, surviving wars, political shifts, and the passage of time. Its Romanesque church of Sant Bartomeu, dating from the 11th century, still stands as a testament to its religious and cultural significance.

▣ A Carefully Preserved Legacy

In recent years, the current owners have carried out a meticulous restoration and preservation project, with a deep commitment to maintaining the castle's historical integrity. The work has been done using traditional materials and methods, ensuring the soul and authenticity of the building remain intact.

As a result, the castle is now a fully licensed tourist accommodation, offering a unique and immersive stay. Currently used for vacation rentals, cultural getaways, and private retreats, it combines historical significance with immediate income potential.

▣ A Place Outside of Time

Surrounded by mountains, forests, and peaceful solitude, the Castle of Llaés is ideal for a cultural or boutique tourism project – or simply for those seeking an extraordinary private residence in nature. Its elevated position offers panoramic views of the Ter Valley and the breathtaking pre-Pyrenean landscapes of Catalonia.

Purchasing the Castle of Llaés means becoming the guardian of a thousand-year-old legacy – and embracing a truly unique way of life.

A rare opportunity to own a place where past and present coexist in perfect harmony.
