OVERVIEW

Spectacular house with spaces that are open the sea and the mountains and have large windows, located on top of a hill with the best location to enjoy the views of the Gulf of Valencia.

Between the sea and the mountain, is the idyllic location of this house with powerful contemporary features that unite nature and artifice. The house perches on the highest point of Monasterios, taking in the Mediterranean landscape and bathed in the blue shades of the sky and sea. The house is set in a natural way, linked to the earth through a solid base and its cream-colored masonry walls. The different levels rise vertically accompanying the slope of the hillside and the terraces are like horizontal strata or suspended trays that enhance the views towards infinity.

Unique is the concept that describes the construction of the house. The combination of landscape and building material is the engine of the project: rock at the base, and onyx and marble in all its versions in the air. The walls are almost like amber, the gold colour of honey, creating an elegant and natural atmosphere.

The house is accessed from the lowest part of the hillside. It is a classic-style entrance composed of a large gate, a central drive and two symmetrical strips of greenery. The garage is on this level, completely connected to the hillside. The upper three levels unfold from the hillside and are totally exterior facing, so that the spaces extend into the landscape through immense glazed surfaces and large suspended terraces.

On the upper level, the day area is offered, conceiving itself as a continuous, flexible and universal room, with a living room, dining room, kitchen and two small areas in the centre, which include a toilet and the lift. This unique space doubles in surface when taking in the adjacent terraces and multiplies when looking at the landscape. It is like almost infinite space that floats in the sea.

This level is completed with a work of art: the stairs. This piece highlights uniqueness of the house, generating an elegant and magical atmosphere.

The incredible terrace is bordered and protected by a large pergola, open to the sky or covered by a perforated textile. It also has an outdoor fireplace, and a unique gem: an infinity pool, with a transparent floor that projects its reflections on the lower floor. The terrace merges with the Mediterranean Sea.

The two lower levels work similarly, with five rooms with private bathrooms and a gym. All with terraces and views.

On the middle floor, the family's three bedrooms are located. They are the same in terms of design, materials and the size and the spectacular pattern of backlit marble in the master bedroom are highlights.

The gardens have also been studied in detail, including the lighting and the enclosures of the plot. This completes a unique home for its design, finishes and location: an authentic refuge where its golden reflections combine with the blue reflections of the sea.

The house is available for rent or for rent with the option to buy.
