OVERVIEW

It is a fantastic and exclusive Galician-type stone villa from the late 18th century, with all the original charm but an elegant restoration. It is close to nice beaches and small villages and a property with good possibilities.

Lucas Fox presents this exclusive house with a lot of history dating back to the 18th century. It was completely renovated a few years ago with an excellent result that combines stone and wood to achieve a design with a period aesthetic and incredible taste.

The original internal structure, which had wooden beams and a mansard roof, was carefully preserved.

The property is accessed via a covered walkway. Once inside, there is a spacious living room with impressive ceiling heights, exposed wooden beams and stone flooring. On the left is a large, well-preserved stone fireplace with an oven and a large stonework shield. On this floor, there is a toilet, and in the area on the right, there are two large bedrooms with period furniture and private bathrooms.

Via stairs, we access an attic area with a small library and bedroom area that offers beautiful views of the living room. Here, we find two large bedrooms with lovely garden views and a bathroom.

We access the lower area of the property via stone stairs that house a very cosy living room with an open rustic kitchen and a sizeable semi-circular stone arch that stands out.

To the right is the bedroom area with a hallway leading to a charming oratory and two spacious bedrooms with private bathrooms. This floor has two entrances. On the right, we access a fantastic porch where you can enjoy. It overlooks the back of the property, which has a garden and a barbecue area.

On the left, we go to the front part of the house, which has an annexed stone building currently used as a warehouse. There is also a lovely fountain with stone details and a garden area.
